COUNTY CALLS MAY ORDINANCE WOULD GO ON PAY BASIS KEEP DOGS AT HOME

All Free Service Would Be suspended Under the Burleson Telephone Administration Order.

NOTICE TO SEYMOUR COMPANY PLACED ON FIRST READING

Another Attempt May Be Made to Prevent Order—Schedule of Rates for Jackson County.

The long arm of the government telephone administration, which has been clothed with sweeping powers, is about to reach out from Washington and give Jackson county a mighty blow right between the eyes. Technically, the blow has already been administered but its effect may not be felt for a day or so.

The Burleson order fixing new toll charges is about to be extended so far that all free service in Jackson county will be suspended and he who talks must pay. If the order is permitted to go into effect the day when "talk is cheap" will be over. The order was dated to become effective this morning, but it was not enforced here today as it is understood that another attempt will be made to enjoin the government from placing it in effect. A decision may be given tomorrow.

The Seymour telephone company received a notice following the dismissal of the injunction in federal court Wednesday that the new Burleson rates were effective without further delay. The public is already familiar with the increase that will result in so-called long distance calls, but was not prepared for the notice that service within Jackson county would also go on a pay basis. The charge to be made, it is understood is five cents for calls within the first six miles, ten cents within twelve miles, fifteen cents within eighteen miles and an additional charge of five cents for each multiple of six miles within a radius of forty miles.

The notice to the local company reads as follows:

"The restraining order issued by the United States district court of Indiana on January 20, last, was dissolved by Judge Anderson today. Therefore, you are instructed to put into full force and effect immediately all rates and charges specified in order 2495."

The notice is signed by Hart F. Farwell, supervisor for the United States telephone and telegraph administration.

An example of the toll scale in the county if the Burleson order goes into effect is shown by the following which in each case will cost five cents:

Seymour to—Cortland, Peter's Switch and Reddington.

Surprise to—Brownstown and Cortland.

Brownstown to—Vallonia. Surprise and Tampico.

Clearspring to—Kurtz and Free-town.

Cortland to—Surprise, Seymour and Peter's Switch.

Crothersville to—Austin.

Freetown to—Kurtz and Clear-spring.

Kurtz to—Clearspring and Free-town.

Medora to—Vallonia.

Peter's Switch to—Seymour, Cortland, Jonesville and Reddington.

Reddington to—Peter's Switch, Seymour and Jonesville.

Tampico to—Brownstown and Crothersville.

Vallonia to—Medora and Brownstown.

The rate from Seymour to Brownstown will be ten cents; from Seymour to Medora, fifteen cents, and from Seymour to Sparksville, twenty cents.

The order received by the local company is mandatory, it is understood, and unless some action is taken to prevent its enforcement it will go into effect tomorrow.

Local people are strongly opposed to the order, especially as it effects local business. The public generally can see no reason why the administration at Washington should regulate rates in Jackson county and especially place free service on a toll basis.

Repeal of Tax Regulations and a Penalty for Canines Running at Large Provided.

Tree Trimming Controversy Settled by Agreement to Remove Two Dead Trees from Park.

An ordinance which is designed to repeal the present dog tax regulations and to fix a penalty upon owners who permit their dogs to run at large was introduced at the regular session of the city council last night by Councilman Emery. Proposed changes in the method of dealing with the dog question have been discussed at several meetings recently and the Emery ordinance comes after an informal decision was reached not to change the present ordinance.

The ordinance in full is as follows: "Section 1. Be it ordained by the common council of the city of Seymour, Indiana, that it shall be and is unlawful for any person who owns, harbors or keeps any dog or dogs to permit said dog or dogs to run at large unattended by the owner or master of said dog, on the streets, alleys, sidewalks and public places of the city of Seymour, Indiana.

"Section 2. Be it further ordained by the common council of the city of Seymour, Indiana, that any person found guilty of violating Section one of this ordinance shall be fined in any sum not less than one dollar or more than ten dollars for each violation thereof.

"Section 3. In the event that any strange dog is found running at large upon the streets, alleys, sidewalks, common or any public place in the city of Seymour, Indiana, and the owner of said dog is unknown, it shall be lawful for the police of the city of Seymour, Indiana, to take possession of said stray dog and at the expiration of five days if the owner of said dog is not found it shall be lawful for the police to kill said stray dog or dogs.

"Section 4. From and after the passage of this ordinance there shall be no taxes against anyone who keeps and owns dogs in the city of Seymour, Indiana.

"Section 5. All ordinances and

AMERICAN MUTUAL OFFICERS CHOSEN

F. J. Voss Named President and O. O. Swails, Vice-President by The Board of Directors.

W. S. RATLIFF IS DIRECTOR

New Method of Conducting the Agency Department Will be Followed The Coming Year.

At a meeting of the directors of the American Mutual Life Insurance Company at the home offices, corner Second street and Indianapolis Ave., Wednesday night, officers were elected for the coming year and various other matters pertaining to the organization were outlined.

The new officers are: Frank J. Voss—President. Oren O. Swails—Vice President. P. A. Niechter—Treasurer. W. E. Weller—Secretary and Sales Director.

Mr. Swails was also elected general counsel.

Walter S. Ratliff, of Richmond, was elected a member of the directorate of the company. Mr. Ratliff has a wide acquaintance throughout the state, having served as speaker of the house of representatives several years ago. He has been connected with the Mutual company for some time but in the future will give more of his time to the business of the organization.

The directors of the company decided to change the method of management in the sales and agency department. Instead of selling policies on the commission basis, special field agents will be employed at a salary. These agents will have headquarters in this city. Several have already been selected but announcement of the members of this department will be withheld until the districts are fully decided upon and the assignments are permanently made.

Mr. Voss, the president, will devote more of his time to the field work and will look after the special representatives in a general way. Mr. Niechter has arranged to give more of his time to the office and Mr. Weller, the secretary, will devote his time almost exclusively to the organization work.

The company is well pleased with the way in which the business for the year has started and the prediction is made that 1919 will be the banner year in the history of the company. The necessary war risks last year placed a handicapped upon the insurance but with peace again at hand the business has opened up in an unprecedented manner.

GERMANS PREPARE TO MOVE AGAINST POLES

More Than 20,000 Volunteers Leave for the Eastern Front.

By United Press. Berlin, January 30.—German military preparations have been completed and a great offensive against the invading poles may soon be expected, it was announced today. More than 20,000 volunteers left for the "eastern front" yesterday.

Polish forces are nearing the border of the province of Brandenburg. The Volkerat of Bromberg has protested against further negotiations with the Poles, declaring the latter will not keep any agreements and only want to gain time for strong military measures.

Berlin is situated in Brandenburg which is bounded on the east by the province of West Prussia and Posen. The eastern boundary of Brandenburg is about 100 miles from Berlin.

TELEPHONE TOLLS.

The new telephone toll charges which become effective under the recent Burleson administration order will be regarded by the public as excessive and burdensome. Apparently there is no reasonable excuse to place such rates on county service as has been ordered by the federal administration. The local company has maintained free county service in the past and the government ought to render equal service.

WOUNDED MARINE LOOKS FOR HIS DREAM GIRL HERE

Hero Had Picture But Was Unable to Find Her on Return Trip Through Seymour.

An incident at the B. & O. S.W. station today proves that romances with a Romeo vs. Juliet setting do not always happen just in story books.

Passengers waiting at the station yesterday will probably recall seeing a handsome looking Marine jump from a coach when the train pulled in, and walk hurriedly up and down the platform furtively searching the faces of the femininity present with a half eager, half anxious expression of uncertainty. Well, he came through Seymour several months ago on his way to France and during the short halt here made the acquaintance of a Seymour girl who happened to be at the station. At the time both were too deeply impressed by the other to make inquiry concerning such a small thing as a name so when the train started the hero climbed aboard and off, shucks! he didn't know the "fair lady's" non-de-plume. Always prepared, the sea soldier whipped out his pocket camera and took the heroine's picture just as the train pulled away.

Yesterday with his right hand gone, the Marine mentioned in the first chapter returned. He had been in France and the fray lost his hand. While his train stood at the station he got off and looked for the girl he left behind. Perhaps she had forgotten him. Who knows? At least, she was not there so with a sad and wistful smile the hero of shot and shell boarded the train and started westward.

DAILY HEALTH TALKS

The Best Way to Treat
Constipation

BY S. C. BABCOCK, M. D.

The medical books name many drugs that will move the bowels. The drug store shelves are loaded down with laxatives, purgatives and pills. The trouble with most of them is the after-effects. Constipated people know that pills work all right for a little while, but they soon lose their effect, and a change has to be made to something else. The constant taking of pills results in a form of bowel inactivity that is difficult to cure. The system becomes so accustomed to laxative drugs that the organs just won't work without them, and so the pill habit becomes as bad as constipation itself. Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., seems to me to have the right idea. He says the bowels should first be gently moved with Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, and in the meantime laxative foods only should be eaten. Figs, prunes, olive oil, spinach, bran, vegetables and fruits are fine for constipation. Chew every bite thoroughly, eat little meat, and be as active as possible. Now, doesn't that seem sensible? Pleasant Pellets will start the bowels working right; then it is up to you to keep them right by right eating. Try Pleasant Pellets for sick headache, coated tongue, biliousness, dizziness, torpid liver or to break up a cold. They are just fine!

Dr. Pierce's Anodyne Pile Ointment soothes, cools and heals piles in a most gratifying way. Perhaps there is no other remedy for this torturing trouble that relieves so surely and quickly. Dr. Pierce believes Anodyne Pile Ointment will overcome any case that can be overcome by medical treatment. Try it right now.

Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets are intended for people who suffer from kidney disorders—whose backs ache, and whose systems are overrun with uric acid. Nearly everybody has too much uric acid. Anuric Tablets dissolve uric acid quickly, as they are made double strength.

The big increase over the preceding year was undoubtedly due in a large measure to the appeal of the food administration for a larger production of all crops to meet the needs of the United States and our allies during the period of the war.

Indiana had a prominent part in meeting the appeal of the food administration. The report shows that the value of crops produced in this state in 1918 was $507,563,000. The state ranked eighth among all the states of the union. Indiana's place last year was also eighth although the value of her crops was approximately $504,300,000. Illinois retained her rank in first place this year with a production valued at $879,679,000.

Corn, wheat, rye and barley, which are the staples produced in Indiana, are included among the principal yields. Eighty percent of the total crop production was made up of thirteen articles: corn, wheat, oats, barley, rye, buckwheat, flaxseed, potatoes, sweet potatoes, hay, tobacco and cotton. It is noticeable that the states which are ranked in the first ten in the list are those that produce principally such crops as corn, wheat and rye.

Medicines Used by Monks.

It is claimed that Monks of ancient days knew of more than three hundred species of medicinal plants used in general for medicines by these religious orders. While centuries have passed, with all the advance made in medical science, many of our most successful remedies are today made from the roots and herbs of the field, like that good, old-fashioned remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for more than forty years has been relieving women from some of the worst forms of female ills, and is now considered the standard remedy.

Recall of American Troops and Embargo on Exports is Threatened —Diplomats Notified.

By United Press.

Washington, January 30—The United States threatened to withdraw its support from the Russian republican factions unless they endorse President Wilson's plan for ending the Russian strike through a meeting with the Bolsheviks and allied delegates, diplomatic circles disclosed today. Recall of American troops, embargo against exports and withdrawal of United States recognition now granted the diplomats of the Russian constitutionalists at Washington would be the most significant feature of the step.

Similar action could be expected from Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan. It is understood the American viewpoint has been communicated to the Russian embassy here for conveyance to Russian ambassadors and ministers at Paris.

Soldiers' Letters

An Unusual Christmas.

Mrs. James Bowman has received the following letter from her son, Noah F. Bowman:

Kruth, Germany,
December 25, 1919.

Dear Parents and All:

As this is Christmas morning and I owe you a letter I will try and write a line or two.

Well, I am in Germany now. Our Division was put in the army of occupation and we are going to stay here until peace is signed. Don't know when that will be but I sure do hope it is soon so we can come back to the U. S. A. for I can't speak Dutch.

I received the box yesterday and was glad to get it so prompt and I thank you all for remembering me. I also thank the Red Cross for the handkerchief, although I had to have it washed before I could use it for the box had been mashed a little and the candy stuck to it. I gave the little German kiddies where I stay some of the chocolate and they sure did repay me for it. Their mother called us in to eat supper and while we were eating she came in our room and set six plates on our bench and filled them with cakes, apples and nuts for the six of us fellows and she put a piece of cedar in each plate. Her surprise for us sure did work for when we finished eating and came in the room it sure surprised us. After we got over the surprise we helped the man decorate a Christmas tree for the children, it sure looked swell when we finished putting trimmings on. It looked just like a tree over there.

The thoughts of old Santa were great for when we went to bed the weather looked fair and when we awoke this morning there was a snow about one and a half inches deep, so it looks like Christmas. Well, I suppose you think that the German people would snarl their nose at us but they never have since we first saw them and we have been in several small towns and some large ones but never once got a cross look. They seem to like the American soldiers for we never come in our billets without a welcome smile and a good-morning from all when we get up.

Well, I have just come from dinner. We had some roast pork, mashed spuds, gravy and rice and some cake to eat and all of the German beer we wanted to drink. Some dinner.

The Y. M. C. A. gave us a can of Tuxedo and a pack of cigarettes and a bar of chocolate, and the K. of C. gave us some candy and cigarettes, so Christmas was not so bad after all.

Tell Mrs. Winscott that I sure wish I was back where I could spade her little garden in the spring. Did you ever hear anything about Fat Eldridge or the Rhude boy that left with me? And Fat Miller? Haven't heard whether they had a hard day or not but I hope they all were as lucky as myself so far. Tell Sis that I am sorry I am not at home for if a girl gets forty cents an hour I ought to be able to make sixty.

Well, this leaves me well and contented for today at least, so I will close for this time hoping you are all well and happy, from your loving son,

Noah F. Bowman,

Bat. E, 10th. F. A.,

P. S. Will try to tell you a little about one of our awful battles in my next letter.

Experiences in Navy.

Clarence Weisman, who is on the U. S. S. Orizaba, writes as follows to a friend here:

Sunday, January 26, 1919.

My Dear Friend:

I shall answer your good letter that came on board yesterday. It seems like civilization again to get back again among our own people where we can understand what each other's language means. I have heard every language spoken I think since I have been in this outfit. It was very interesting at first but now it is getting to be a pest.

Our trip this time took us to a few new places. For instance, our first stop from France was at Rotterdam, Holland. First I shall tell you how by local applications as they cannot reach the deepest parts of the ear. There is only one way to cure Catarrhal Deafness and that is by a constitutional remedy.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a troubling sound on the ear, hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing may be destroyed forever. Many cases of Deafness are caused by Catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the Mucous Surfaces.

ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE. All Druggists 75c. Circles free.

we happened to make those trips. Our ship was exchanged for the big La France transport, a French ship.

It was to make one trip to the states with 1,000 American troops and we were to carry a like number of their troops from ports on the North Sea. Some of the ports up there would not or could not rather dock the bigger ships so the governments made the exchange. The Orizaba was the first transport in Rotterdam. There we got our first experience with the French prisoners who had been in prison camps for four years, and believe me, they were pretty shabby looking. I felt so sorry for them and was glad to help carry them back home again. They were happy to get back to France too.

Then the next two trips were made to Copenhagen, Denmark. A very fine city sure enough, we enjoyed our stay there and one stop was on Christmas Day. The city gave our crew a ball in the King's own Yacht Club Hall and the princess and a few more of the royal family attended. They certainly gave us a good time and when we left each time the dock was lined with people. The last time out it was estimated that 4,000 people were down to see us off. We landed the French troops each time at Cherbourg, France.

The North Sea was dangerous part of the way because of so many floating mines. We sank sixteen by shell fire and passed up about forty because it was taking up too much time.

I am very anxious to get back into civilian life now and hope to be sent home in a month or so. I heard from the folks yesterday and they are O.K. That "flu" kept me uneasy about them but I hope it is passed for good.

I want to thank you for your interesting letter and must close, sending sincere wishes.

Clarence.

Be a Joy-Walker, "Gets-It" for Corns

2 Drops, 2 Seconds—Corn Is Doomed!

When you almost die with your shoes on and corns make you almost walk sideways to get away from the pain, take a vacation for a minute or two and apply 2 or 3 drops

"My Corns Peel Clean Off, With 'Gets-It'" of the world's magic and only genuine corn-peeler, "Gets-It". Then, and then only, will you be sure that your corn will loosen from your toe so that you can peel it right off gloriously, cast it with your fingers. There no chances of continued pain and soreness—why use greasy, irritating salves, plasters that shift and press into the "quick," razors and "diggers" that make corns bleed and also grow faster? Use painless, easy, always sure "Gets-It". There's only one, like it in the world—there's only one. Millions have tried and O. K.'d it for years. It never fails. "Gets-It" the guaranteed, money-back, corn-remover, the only sure way, costs but a trifle at any drug store. M'd by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill. Sold in Seymour and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by C. E. Loertz and Wm. L. Federmann.

BETTER SERVICE CAMPAIGN BY THE EXPRESS COMPANY

Effect to Be Made to Prevent Waste of Time and to Protect Shipments.

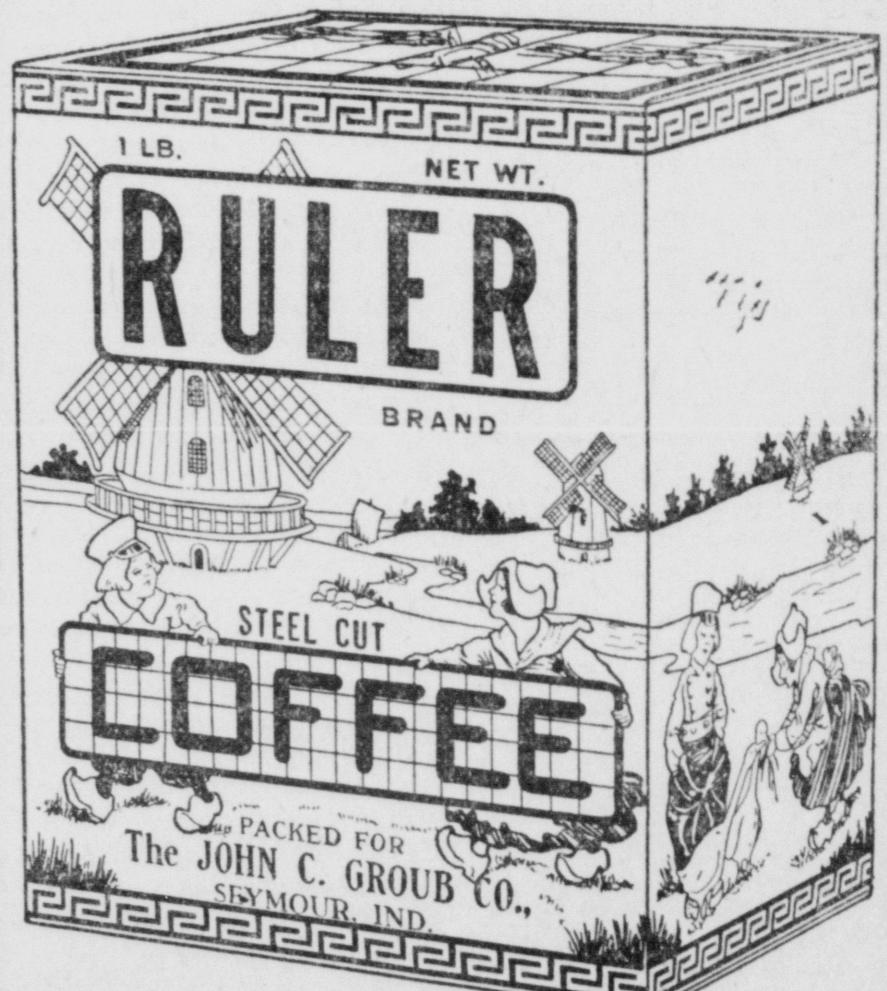

Plans of a most comprehensive nature to bring about conditions which will make possible a marked improvement in the express service throughout the country, were announced last night, by Clark Hennessy, local representative of the American Railway Express Company. A "Better Service Campaign" will be undertaken by the 135,000 men and women employed in the express business, for the purpose of raising the standards of packing, wrapping and marking express shipments.

The drive will start on February 10, in every city and town in the country. It will comprise a campaign of education and appeal among express employees simultaneously with a widespread effort to secure the co-operation of the shipping public along the same lines. No new packing or marking rules have been adopted for the campaign, but express drivers and receiving clerks will be instructed hereafter to insist, firmly but courteously, that the rules already in force be strictly adhered to.

The chief purpose of the "Better Service Campaign" is to check once and for all, the waste of time, effort and money that result from lost or damaged shipments. It is a source of dissatisfaction and annoyance to both shippers and the carrier and tends to impair the express service. It is expected that all who ship by express, and 300,000,000 shipments are annually traveling that way, will be keenly interested in the forthcoming drive, because it so intimately concerns the transportation end of many different trades and indus-

SEAMAN HARRY CARTER
IS HERE ON FURLough

Son of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Carter
Makes Eight Trans-Atlantic Trips.

Harry Carter, first class seaman
U. S. S. Wieldrecht, the son of Mr.
and Mrs. A. P. Carter, West Fourth street, arrived this morning from Brooklyn, N. Y., to spend a 21-day furlough with his parents. Seaman Carter, since Jan. 1, has been in the naval hospital at Brooklyn on account of injuries developing from a barbed wire cut across his hand. Recently he was dismissed from the hospital and succeeded in obtaining a furlough on account of his ship being laid up for repairs.
Young Carter will return to his ship
Feb. 18 to serve his remaining years of enlistment. He enlisted Nov. 6, 1916 while only 18 years old and at that time a naval recruit under 21 years of age had to serve until the day before he became of age.
Carter's enlistment will expire one year from next April.

During the time he has been in the service Seaman Carter has made eight trips into foreign waters, touching at points on the coast of England and France. When the U.
S. first declared war Carter was a gun trainer in the regular navy and was serving aboard the Manchuria with one of her three inch gun crews. Later he was attached to the Naval Reserve and put aboard an oil collier. It was while serving in the capacity of seaman on the Wieldrecht that Carter made his eight trips and received the injury that put him in the hospital.

When the armistice was signed the Wieldrecht, loaded with oil for aeroplane motors was just 48 hours off the New York coast on her way to France. Carter says he has never been in any real action and that the nearest his ship ever came to being in danger was when a lone submarine was sighted a mile or so away. When the sub was sighted, Carter says, the crew began dropping depth bombs overboard and it sounded "like dropping bricks into a half filled wash boiler." Later, chasers accompanying the ship, succeeded in sinking the submarine.

Sergt. Wright Home.

Sergt. Charles Wright, sharpshooter, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Wright of this city, returned to his home here this morning after serving with the United States forces over seventeen months. He enlisted in the infantry at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, September 5, 1917, and was sent to Point Pleasant, West Virginia, for training. From there he went to Camp Custer, where he has been stationed until recently when he received his discharge from the service. For some time Sergt. Wright was a member of Co. F, 10th Infantry, but was transferred to the Seventy-seventh Infantry which was making preparations to sail for France shortly before the influenza struck Camp Custer.

Sergt. Wright was a volunteer student in the non-commissioned officers training school conducted by the battalion Major. For several weeks the students were given special training in firing and it was right after this that Sergt. Wright won his sharpshooters medal. "With a little training," he says, "and the guns we use now, there is absolutely no excuse for poor shooting aside from downright carelessness." Evidently, Sergt. Wright would have made a hard boiled drill sergeant for rookies.

Relevant Electric Light Switches

The class in interior decoration stopped to see a room of recent acquisitions. On the wall before them was one of the finest tapestries in the world; below it, on a carved stand, was a vase that repeated the dull tones of the tapestry. On either side distanced by the width of the tapestry, was a high-backed chair, and in either corner stood a triangular cupboard. Analyzing it, the instructor thought he had never seen more perfect composition, so he enjoined the class to study it carefully. But there was obviously something wrong, something that the instructor did not see.

"Isn't it too bad that electric light switch is there, or, at least, that it is so noticeable?" remarked one pupil, pointing to a red box-like projection on the wall. She had struck the keynote of discord for, when this was hidden, the wall took on a dignity and beauty that was not apparent before.

It is often difficult to eliminate these incongruous elements in our houses, but, at least, it is possible to better them. Strangely enough, in this day when door knobs and chandeliers have come in for their full measure of attention, electric light switches remain brass boxes, no matter what the mediums of decoration in the home. However, a few inventive home furnishers have experimented with decorative switch plates, with such gratifying results that making them a part of the wall furnishing of every room seems possible.

Night Tables

Since bedrooms have grown to be sane affairs, there are all sorts of little comforts which we add almost without thinking. There is the easy chair to be used for the chance bit of sewing, or the last minute finishing of the book that won't wait. There is the footstool or the foot pillow for the slipped feet. There is the bedside stool or chair, which is usually placed at the foot of the bed, and which holds the morning clothing. There is the slipper chair, which is the ordinary straight armless chair, rather low, and which is used to sit on while putting on slippers and shoes. There is the real sewing chair, the rocker or comfortable chair without arms, and the little drawer-filled sewing table. And there is the night table.

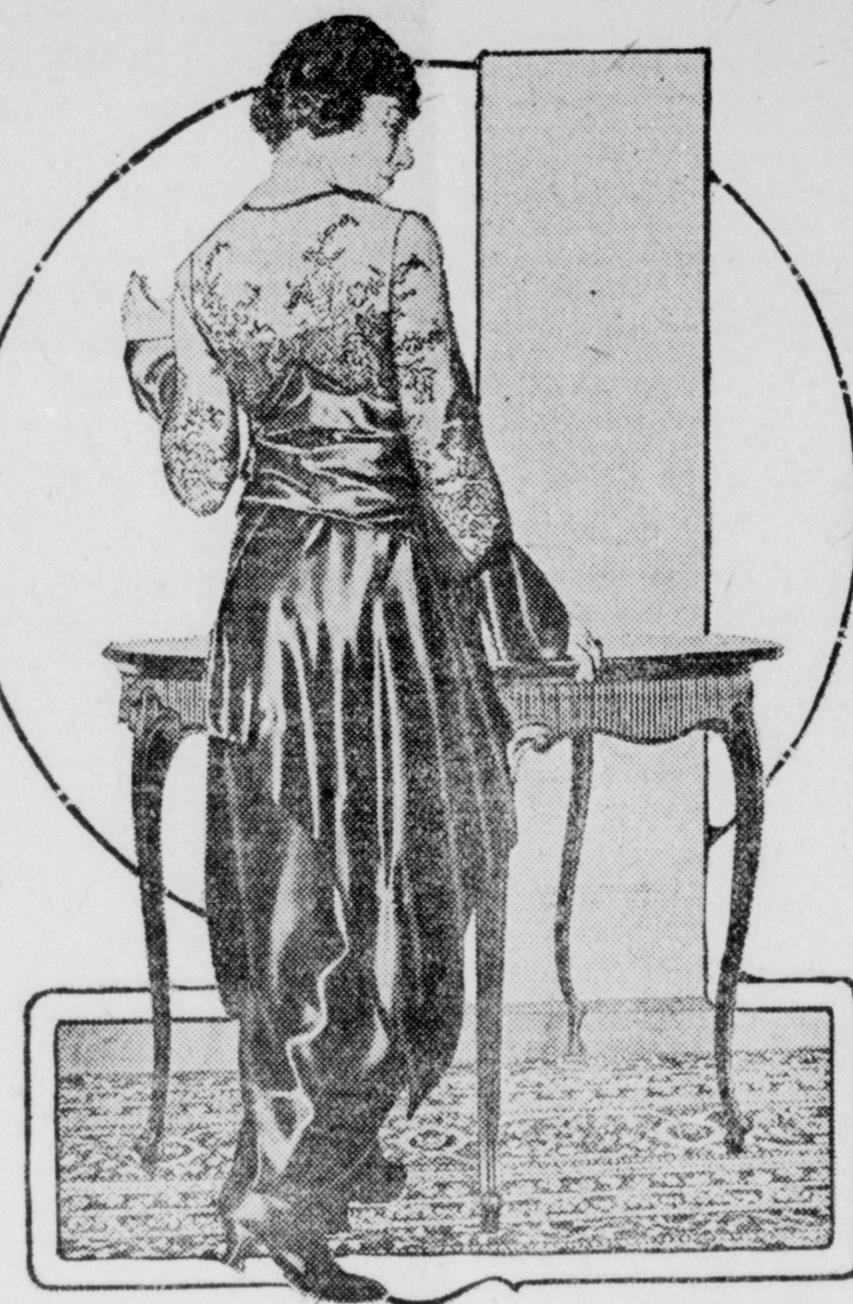

Just what is the night table for? It usually holds a clock, sometimes a telephone, and always a lamp. The position of the night table is close to

The usual switch plates, of shiny brass, and mother-of-pearl push buttons can be transformed in a number of ways. One of the simplest and most effective ways is to substitute a wooden plate, that matches the furniture or the picture frames, for the brass one. Screws, with flat unstained wooden tops, can be procured and stained to match the plate, so that not even a screw is out of keeping with the other furnishings.

In a room where silk or cretonne paneling is used on the walls, the material can be stretched over the brass plate and holes cut for the push buttons. In rooms where painted furniture is used, the switch plates can be painted, as brass takes furniture paint very well. A solid background, with a simple border or conventional design repeating one of the motifs on the furniture, would be effective.

More ornamental and elaborate switch plates can be had in curio stores. Before electricity was common, clock mechanism doorbells were used and, for these, finely carved push button blocks, that can now be had for electric light switches, were made. These can be found in many period styles, though fine ivory carvings of classic design are the most common. Most of these have two push buttons; but, even when there is only one, this variety can be used, for with little work an electrician can fix the wires so that, by pushing the same button, a light can be turned on and then off.

Of Chantilly Lace and Black Satin

No matter what gay colors may express the jubilant mood of women who are once more indulging themselves in dinner and evening gowns, black satin remains the most certain of admiration.

Its distinction and its becomingness are so well recognized that the gown of black satin is a matter of course in the smart woman's wardrobe; she would not consider herself outfitted without one or two of them. It is the most versatile of fabrics. Given rich black satin and fine chantilly lace, the best of designers will begin at once to dream dreams which no color could inspire.

Lucille has just recently turned out the enchanting dinner dress which is pictured here. It is an after-the-war inspiration with a hint of the "submarine" silhouette—for which we shall have to find another name since no one wishes to think of submarines now. It widens at the hips and narrows at the ankles in the graceful way dear to the heart of Lucille when she puts her mind upon picturesque gowns.

There is a plain underbodice of American Beauty satin, a mere wide band, which appears to be wrapped about the bust. Nothing could cling closer to the shoulders and arms than the lace of the bodice, with long sleeves which end in deep flaring cuffs of satin. These mits and cuffs on lace sleeves are a feature of the new styles and jeweled hands play hide and seek in them in a very fascinating way. The bodice has a round neck finished in the simplest way with a binding of satin.

The long pointed tunie and the very wide girdle of satin are marvels of beautiful adjustment to the figure. The genius of the designer is written in them and in the facing of the tunie with American Beauty satin, the tracery of heavy silk floss, cleverly outlining the pattern in the lace which make of this a joyous and beautiful Victory gown.

occasions. It would be out of place elsewhere.

The dark and somber blouse predominates though it is relieved with beadings in brilliant effects, and it can not in any sense be called dull. The introduction of burnished gold or silver or other metal tissue also adds to the lighter effect and to the richness of the newest blouses.

In making comforts the Japanese women sew the top and bottom cloths together all around, leaving about a yard slit in the middle seam of the bottom. The comfort is then laid on the floor wrong-side out and the cotton spread on it. The cotton is tacked at the corners and at the center of the sides and end edges. Then each corner is rolled into the center hole and turned right side out, and the slit blind-stitched together, the comfort stretched smooth by two persons pulling it; then it is tucked in several places. This method saves the use of frames and does away with the usual American binding which takes so much time.

Hard beating on the back of rugs with carpet-beaters breaks the sizing, causing the rug to lose its stiffness. The cleaning may be accomplished just as well or even better by beating the back of the rug lightly all over with a beater, then turning it over and sweeping off the dirt. Repeat this operation several times, and the rug will be cleaned just as effectively and will last longer.

If you would attain the attractive brown glazing which the pastry cook's pies always have brush a bit of white of egg over the top crust before setting the pie in the oven to bake.

Sweet oil will remove finger marks from varnished furniture. Kerosene is more effective on waxed or oiled furniture.

A tough piece of meat will cook tender if it is first soaked in vinegar.

GOLD CAKE.

$\frac{1}{4}$ cupful butter $\frac{1}{2}$ cupful sugar, 4 egg yolks, grated rind of 1 orange, 1-3 teaspoonful salt, $\frac{1}{4}$ cupful milk, $\frac{1}{2}$ cupful sifted wheat flour; $\frac{1}{4}$ cupful corn or potato flour, 2 teaspoonfuls baking powder.

Cream the butter, beat in the sugar, yolks, beaten light, the grated rind and salt and alternately the milk and flour, sifted with the baking powder. Bake in a round pan (seven inches in diameter) for about twenty minutes. When the cake is cold invert it and cover the surface with frosting.

Frosting:— $\frac{1}{4}$ cupful sugar, $\frac{1}{4}$ cupful boiling water, 2 egg whites, $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoonful orange extract, $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoonful almond extract.

Melt the sugar in the water, cover and let cook three or four minutes, then uncover and let cook until a soft ball may be formed when tried in cold water. Pour on the egg whites beaten light, beating constantly. Continue to beat until cold, add the flavoring and use.

POTATO CAKE.

1 cupful butter, 1 teaspoonful salt, $\frac{1}{3}$ cupfuls sugar; 3 egg yolks beaten very light, 1 cupful riced potato, 1 cupful sweet chocolate grated; 1 cupful fine chopped nuts; grated rind of 1 lemon, 1 cupful wheat flour, 2-3 cupful rice flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 3 egg whites beaten stiff. Cream the butter and salt, gradually add the sugar, egg yolks, riced potatoes, chocolate, nuts, and lemon rind, add the flour sifted with baking powder, and lastly the egg whites. Bake in three-layer cake pans about 15 minutes. Put the layers together with fruit jelly and cover the outside with frosting.

Frosting:— $\frac{3}{4}$ cupful butter, $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoonful salt; 2 cupfuls confectioners' sugar, strong black coffee. Cream the butter with the salt; gradually beat in the sugar, then drop by drop, coffee to tint and flavor as desired.

CUSTARD PIE

Pastry; 4 eggs; $\frac{3}{4}$ cupful sugar, $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoonful salt; $2\frac{1}{2}$ cupfuls rich milk; nutmeg.

Trim the sheet of pastry to extend beyond the plate three-fourths of an inch on all sides, roll over to meet the edge of the plate. Flute this double fold of pastry with the thumb and finger and press each fluting down upon the edge of the plate. In setting the pastry on the plate press out all air from below. Beat the eggs, add sugar and salt, add the milk, mix thoroughly and turn into the prepared plate. Cook in hot oven lowering the heat after a few minutes that the custard be not overcooked. When puffy and firm the pie is baked. Grate a little nutmeg over the top and chill before serving.

CHOCOLATE CAKE

$\frac{1}{2}$ cupful butter; 1 1-3 cupfuls sifted brown sugar; 2 eggs; 4 ounces melted chocolate; $\frac{1}{2}$ cupful sifted brown sugar; $\frac{1}{2}$ cupful boiling water; $\frac{1}{2}$ cupful sour milk; 2 cupfuls barley or oat flour; $\frac{1}{4}$ cupful rice or corn flour; $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoonful cinnamon; $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoonful cloves; $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoonful salt; 1 teaspoonful soda; 1 teaspoonful baking powder.

Cream the butter; beat half the first quantity of sugar into it, the other half into the yolks, then beat the two together. Melt the chocolate, add the half cupful of brown sugar and boiling water and stir until well mixed, then add to the first mixture with the sour milk; add the flour sifted with the spices, salt, soda and baking powder and lastly beat in the whites of the two eggs. Bake in three layer cake tins and put together with marshmallow frosting.

MARSHMALLOW FROSTING

1 cupful honey or $1\frac{1}{2}$ cupfuls granulated sugar; $\frac{1}{2}$ cupful boiling water; 3 egg whites; $\frac{1}{2}$ pound fresh marshmallows; $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoonful vanilla extract.

Melt the sugar in the boiling water, cover and boil for three minutes. Cook until soft ball is formed when tried in cold water. Pour the syrup in a fine stream on the egg whites beating constantly. Beat until somewhat cooled add the marshmallows cut in quarters, add flavoring and use. (When honey is used omit the water.)

PEANUT BRITTLE.

Shell and remove the brown skins from a quart of roasted peanuts. Roll the nuts until they are thoroughly broken; sift, saving the finer parts to use for rolling as you use flour with the cookies. Put a pound of sugar into a clean saucepan. Stand it over a brisk fire, stir and shake until the sugar is thoroughly melted. You must not add water or any other material. When it has melted and looks like golden syrup take it from the fire and stir in quickly as many rolled peanuts as the sugar will hold. Cover the board with the fine peanuts, turn out the hot mixture, sprinkle over more peanuts and roll into a very thin sheet. This must be done quickly or the mixture will harden. With a long knife mark the brittle into squares, wait a moment until it cools, then loosen it from the board, break into squares and put it away. The rough unsightly pieces may be put aside to use at once.

HONEY POPCORN BALLS.

Take a cupful of strained honey, put it into a saucepan and boil until it will form a soft ball when dropped into cold water. Have ready a good-sized bowl of freshly popped corn. Pour the honey over it, mixing all the while. When a little cool, grease the hands, mould the corn into balls and stand them on greased paper. A cupful of sugar and half a cupful of water with a teaspoonful of vinegar may be boiled to a syrup and used in the same fashion.

LIMA BEANS IN TOMATO SAUCE

1 pint lima beans, $\frac{1}{8}$ teaspoonful soda, 1 tablespoonful flour, 1 tablespoonful butter, 1 teaspoonful salt, $\frac{1}{8}$ teaspoonful pepper, $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoonful onion juice, 1 cupful stewed strained tomatoes.

Soak the beans overnight. In the morning, drain and cover with fresh boiling water; cook slowly for one hour. Drain again, add more boiling water, a pinch of salt and soda, and cook an hour longer in a double boiler. Then melt the butter, stir in the flour, add the seasonings, and gradually add the tomatoes. Let boil up once, pour over the beans and serve very hot.

ITALIAN BEANS.

1 cupful Italian beans, 4 tablespoons Olive Oil, 1 teaspoonful salt, pepper, 1 cupful tomato puree, 2 tablespoons minced onion, 6 tablespoonsful grated cheese.

Soak the beans for four hours, and then drain. Fry the onion in the olive oil till softened, then add the beans, tossing them about, and water to cover. Season and boil gently for four hours, adding water to replenish that lost through evaporation. Pour in the tomato puree. After it becomes very hot, strew cheese over it.

OATMEAL COOKIES.

1 cupful flour, $\frac{1}{2}$ cupful fine oatmeal, 1 heaping tablespoonful butter, $1\frac{1}{2}$ tablespoonsful sugar, $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoonful baking soda, 1 egg, milk.

Sift the flour into a basin, add the oatmeal, sugar, and soda. Melt the butter and beat up the egg with a little milk. Pour the hot butter among the dry ingredients and mix well, then the beaten egg, and just enough milk to make a soft dough. Knead a little on a floured baking board and roll out thinly cut in small rounds and bake in a moderate oven for a quarter of an hour.

AN INEXPENSIVE SPONGE CAKE

New Ornament for Hats

One of the manufacturing jewelers has just completed a new article of jewelry in the form of a bar for ladies' hats. This new bar is of a military design and is an exact reproduction of the emblem used by the aviation corps. It is made of sterling silver and is set with rhinestones, rubies and onyx.

Bronze Tints Revived

This winter has seen a revival of bronze tints which are so becoming to brown haired, blue eyed and fair skinned women. There are bronze color evening frocks, and semi-formal gowns for afternoon and hats of bronze tulle for restaurant or theater are almost as numerous as the long popular black hat. It is a welcome innovation, for many women find black hats somewhat trying, but these new models of bronze tulle or lace are universally becoming and still have the formality that is associated with dark colors. Quite unusual in its color scheme is a close turban of brown tulle wreathed with great pinkish red poppies. This accompanied a gown of bronze georgette, simple and straight of line, but almost covered with odd geometrical figures made of tiny bronze beads. A noticeable feature of the frock is a fringe of heavy silk thread which edges a tunie of bronze tulle, mounted over a foundation of black satin. Narrow bands of brown velvet ribbon are effectively placed and for a contrasting note a deep red rose is worn at the belt line.

A High Crowned Sailor

A swagger hat designed for Palm Beach wear is a medium size roll-brim sailor with fairly high crown. It is of black satin and lace and is trimmed with a small ostrich feather posed a little to the left of the front on the edge of the brim. Pastel shades of ribbon worked into dainty floral wreaths trim a dainty separate collar of white georgette.

Blouses

The tendency to elongate the front part of the blouse until it is almost like a small apron is one of the interesting style details this season. This is a curious notion, but one that is tremendously popular at present.

Again, a charming blouse of georgette crepe, for instance, may be split at intervals to show an underblouse on which is embroidered designs in bright red beads.

Some unusual waists of rare Japanese metallic ribbons have been fashioned of a combination of the ribbon and heavy black silk net. The ribbon is so handsome in itself, so further need for ornamentation presents itself. Of course, this sort of blouse is suitable only for elaborate

CHAPTER XII.

A Woman With a Mission.

Within a few hours after O'Reilly's return to New York he telephoned to Felipe Alvarado, explaining briefly the disastrous failure of his Cuban trip.

"I feared as much," the doctor told him. "You were lucky to escape with your life."

"Well, I'm going back. Won't you intercede for me with the junta? They're constantly sending parties."

"Um-m! not quite so often as that." Alvarado was silent for a moment; then he said: "Dine with me tonight and we'll talk it over. I'm eager for news of my brothers and—there is some one I wish you to meet. She is interested in our cause."

"She? A woman?"

"Yes, and an unusual woman. She has contributed liberally to our cause. I would like you to meet her."

"Very well; but I've only one suit of clothes, and it looks as if I'd slept in it."

"Oh, bother the clothes!" laughed the physician. "I've given most of my own to my destitute countrymen. Don't expect too much to eat, either; every extra dollar, you know, goes the same way as my extra trousers. It will be a sort of patriotic 'poverty party.' Come at seven, please."

That evening O'Reilly anticipated his dinner engagement by a few moments in order to have a word alone with Alvarado.

"This lady who is coming here tonight has influence with Enriquez," Alvarado told him. "You remember I told you that she has contributed liberally. She might help you."

O'Reilly had met women with ideals, with purposes, with avocations, and his opinion of them was low. Women who had "missions" were always tiresome, he had discovered. This one, it appeared, was unusual only in that she had adopted a particularly exacting form of charitable work. Nursing even as a rich woman's diversion, must be anything but agreeable. O'Reilly pictured this Evans person in his mind—a large, plain, elderly creature, obsessed with impractical ideas of uplifting the masses! She would undoubtedly bore him stiff with stories of her work; she would reproach him with neglect of his duties to the suffering. Johnnie was too poor to be charitable and too deeply engrossed at the moment with his own troubles to care anything whatever about the "masses." And she was a "miss." That meant that she wore thick glasses and probably kept cats.

A ringing laugh from the cramped hallway interrupted these reflections; then a moment later Doctor Alvarado was introducing O'Reilly to a young woman so completely out of the picture, so utterly the opposite of his preconceived notions, that he was momentarily at a loss. Johnnie found himself looking into a pair of frank gray eyes, and felt his hand seized by a firm, almost masculine grasp. Miss Evans, according to his first dazzling impression, was about the most fetching creature he had ever seen and about the last person by whom any young man could be bored. The girl—and she was a girl—had brought into the room an electric vitality, a breeziness hard to describe. Altogether she was such a vision of healthy, unaffected and smartly gotten-up young womanhood that O'Reilly could only stammer his acknowledgment of the introduction, inwardly berating himself for his awkwardness.

Alvarado placed an affectionate hand upon Miss Evans' shoulder. "O'Reilly, this girl has done more for Cuba than any of us. She has spent a small fortune for medical supplies," said he. "Those poor men must live on quinine," the girl exclaimed. "Anyone who can bear to take the stuff ought to have all he wants. I've a perfect passion for giving pills."

O'Reilly liked this girl. He had liked her the instant she favored him with her friendly smile, and so, trusting fatuously to his masculine powers of observation, he tried to analyze her. He could not guess her age, for an expensive ladies' tailor can baffle the most discriminating eye. Certainly, however, she was not old—he had an idea that she would tell him her exact age if he asked her. While he could not call her beautiful, she was something immensely better—she was alive, human, interesting, and interested. The fact that she did not take her "mission" over-seriously proved that she was also sensible beyond most women. Yes, that was it. Miss Norine Evans was a perfectly sensible, unspoiled young person, who showed the admirable effects of clean living and clear thinking coupled with a normal, sturdy constitution. O'Reilly told himself that here was a girl who could pour tea, nurse a sick man, or throw a baseball.

And she was as good as her promise. She did not interrupt when, during dinner, Alvarado led Johnnie to talk about his latest experience in Cuba, but, on the contrary, her unflagging interest induced O'Reilly to address his talk more often to her than to the doctor. He soon discovered that she understood the Cuban situation as well as or better than he, and that her sympathies were keen. She was genuinely moved by the gallant struggle of the Cuban people, and when the dinner was over she exploded a surprise which left both men speechless.

"This settles it with me," she announced. "I'm going right to the insurrectos with you."

"With me!" O'Reilly could not conceal his lack of enthusiasm. "I don't know that the junta will take me."

"They will if I ask them. You say the rebels have no hospitals, no nurses—"

"We do the best we can, with our equipment."

"Well, I'll supply better equipment, and I'll handle it myself. I'm in earnest. You shan't stop me."

The physician stirred uneasily. "It's utterly absurd," he expostulated. "Some women might do it, but you're not the sort. You are—pardon me—a most attractive young person. You'd be thrown among rough men."

"Mr. O'Reilly will look out for me. But, for that matter, I can take care of myself. Oh, it's of no use trying to discourage me. I always have my own way; I'm completely spoiled."

"Your family will never consent," O'Reilly ventured; whereupon Miss Evans laughed.

"I haven't such a thing. I'm alone and unnumbered. No girl was ever so fortunate. But wait—I'll settle this whole thing in a minute." She quitted the table, ran to Alvarado's telephone, and called a number.

"She's after Enriquez," groaned the physician. "He's weak; he can't refuse her anything."

"I don't want a woman on my hands," O'Reilly whispered, fiercely. "Suppose she got sick? Good Lord! I'd have to nurse her." He wiped a sudden moisture from his brow.

"Oh, she won't get sick. She'll probably nurse you—and all the other men. You'll like it, too, and you will all fall in love with her—everybody does—and start fighting among yourselves. There! She has Enriquez. Listen."

Johnnie shivered apprehensively at the directness with which Miss Evans put her request. "You understand, I want to go and see for myself," she was saying. "If you need medicines I'll give them—bushels of the nastiest stuff I can buy. I'll organize a field hospital. . . . Oh, very well, call it a bribe, if you like. Anyhow, I've fully determined to go, and Mr. O'Reilly has volunteered to take care of me. He's charmed with the idea." Miss Evans giggled. "That means you'll have to take him along, too."

There followed a pause during which the two men exchanged dismayed glances.

"She doesn't seem to care what she says," O'Reilly murmured. "But—I'll put a flea in Enriquez' ear."

"Put it in writing, please." There was a wait. "Now read it to me. . . . Good!" Miss Evans fairly purred over the telephone. "Send it to me by messenger right away; that's a dear. I'm at Doctor Alvarado's house, and he's beside himself with joy. Thanks, awfully. You're so nice." A moment, and she was back in the dining room facing her two friends—a picture of triumph. "You have nothing more to say about it," she gloated. "The provisional government of Cuba, through its New York representatives, extends to Miss Norine Evans an invitation to visit its temporary headquarters in the Sierra de—something-or-other, and deems it an honor to have her as its guest so long as she wishes to remain there. Now then, let's celebrate."

She executed a dance step, pirouetted around the room, then plumped herself down into her chair. She rattled her cup and saucer noisily, crying, "Fill them up, Doctor Gloom. Let's drink to Cuba Libre."

Johnnie managed to smile as he raised his demi-tasse. "Here's to my success as a chaperon," said he. "I'm disliked by the Spaniards, and now the Cubans will hate me. I can see happy days ahead."

O'Reilly arose early the next morning and hurried down to the office of the junta, hoping that he could convince Mr. Enriquez of the folly of allowing Norine Evans to have her way. But his respect for Miss Evans' energy and initiative deepened when, on arriving at 56 New street, he discovered that she had forestalled him and was even then closeted with the man he had come to see. Johnnie waited uneasily; he was dismayed when the girl finally appeared, with Enriquez in tow, for the man's face was radiant.

"It's all settled," she announced, at sight of O'Reilly. "I've speeded them up."

"You're an early riser," the latter remarked. "I hardly expected—"

Enriquez broke in. "Such enthusiasm! Such ardor! She whirls a person off his feet."

"It seems that the Junta lacks money for another expedition, so I've made up the deficit. We'll be off in a week."

"Really? Then you're actually going?"

"Of course. Don't be hateful, and argumentative, or I'll begin to think you're a born chaperon." Miss Evans exclaimed. "Come! Make up your mind to endure me. And now you're going to help me buy my tropical outfit."

With a smile and a nod at Enriquez she took O'Reilly's arm and bore him away.

The days of idle waiting that followed were trying, even to one of O'Reilly's philosophical habit of mind. He could learn nothing about the junta's plans, and, owing to his complete uncertainty, he was unable to get work.

At last there came a message which brought them great joy. Enriquez directed them to be in readiness to leave Jersey City at seven o'clock the following morning. Neither Johnnie nor Leslie Branch slept much that night.

As they waited in the huge, barnlike station Enriquez appeared with Norine Evans upon his arm. The girl's color was high; she was tremulous with excitement. Leslie Branch, who saw her for the first time, emitted a low whistle of surprise.

"Glory be! That goddess!" he cried. When Norine took his bony, bloodless hand in her warm grasp and flashed him her frank, friendly smile, he capitulated instantly.

Enriquez was introducing a newcomer now, one Major Ramos, a square-jawed forceful Cuban, who, it seemed, was to be in command of the expedition.

"My duties end here," Enriquez explained. "Major Ramos will take charge of you, and you must do exactly as he directs. Ask no questions, for he won't answer them. Good-by and good luck."

When he had gone the three Americans followed their new guide through the iron gates.

Major Ramos proved that he knew how to obey orders even though the other members of his party did not. He remained utterly deaf to Miss Evans' entreaties that he let her know something about the plans of the expedition; he would not even tell her where he was taking her, where the other filibusters had assembled, or from what port their ship would sail. When Philadelphia, Washington, then Baltimore, and finally Richmond were left behind, Miss Evans was, in truth, ready to explode, and her two companions were in a similar frame of mind.

It was not until the train was approaching Charleston that Major Ramos finally announced: "This is the end of our journey; the other members of the expedition are here. But I must ask you not to talk with them or with any strangers, for our friends are being watched by detectives in the employ of the Spanish minister at Washington and by United States deputy marshals. One little indiscretion might ruin everything."

The hotel to which Major Ramos led his guests appeared to be well filled; there were many Cubans in the lobby, and the air was heavy with the aroma of their strong, black cigarettes. As the major entered they turned interested and expectant faces toward him and they eyed his companions with frank curiosity. Miss Evans became the target for more than one warmly admiring glance.

As for O'Reilly, the familiar odor of those Cuban cigarettes, the snatches of Spanish conversation which he overheard, awoke in him a great excitement; he realized with an odd thrill that these eager, dark-visaged men were now his friends and comrades, and that those Americans loitering watchfully among them were his enemies—the spies of whom Ramos had spoken. There were at least a score of the latter, and all were plainly stamped with the distinctive marks of their calling. That they, too, were interested in the latest arrivals was soon made evident by their efforts to get acquainted.

On the next afternoon word was quietly passed to get ready, and the filibusters, carrying their scant hand baggage, began to leave the hotel in groups, followed, of course, by the watchful spies.

As the three Americans prepared for departure Norine whispered: "Listen! Everything is all right. We're not going aboard the Dauntless at all; she's here as a blind."

"Are you sure?" O'Reilly shot her a quick glance.

"Major Ramos himself gave that story to the newspapers; it's all a part of his plan. I promised not to tell, but—I just can't help myself. Gee! I'm having a good time."

Leslie Branch shook his head mournfully. "You may enjoy it, but I don't," he grumbled. "We'll end it by being pinched, and that will finish me. One week in a damp cell, with my lungs—"

O'Reilly, whose spirits had risen magically, clapped him heartily on the back, crying: "Congratulations! You're feeling better."

"I never felt worse!" the other complained.

"Nonsense! That's the first kick you've made since we hit cold weather. By the time we reach Cuba you'll be nice and melancholy and your cough will be all gone."

Ramos led his three charges to the railroad station and into the rear coach of a south-bound train, where the other members of the expedition had already found seats. As they climbed aboard a secret service agent essayed to follow them, but he was stopped by a brakeman, who said:

"You can't ride in here; this is a special car. Some sort of a picnic party. They're 'wops' or Greeks or something."

Evening came, then night, and still the party was jerked along at the tail of the train without a hint as to its destination. About midnight those who were not dozing noted that they had stopped at an obscure pine-woods junction, and that when the train got under way once more their own car did not move. The ruse was now apparent; owing to the lateness of the hour, it was doubtful if anyone in the forward coaches was aware that the train was lighter by one car.

There was a brief delay; then a locomotive crept out from a siding, coupled up to the standing car, and drew it off upon another track. Soon the "excursion party" was being rushed swiftly toward the coast, some twenty miles away.

Major Ramos came down the aisle, laughing, and spoke to his American protégés.

"Well, what do you think of that, eh? Imagine the feelings of those good deputy marshals when they wake up. I bet they'll rub their eyes."

Miss Evans bounded excitedly in her seat; she clapped her hands.

"You must have friends in high places," O'Reilly grinned, and the Cuban agreed.

"Yes, I purposely drew attention to us in Charleston, while our ship was loading. She's ready and waiting for us now; and by daylight we ought to be safely out to sea. Meanwhile the Dauntless has weighed anchor and is steaming north, followed, I hope, by all the revenue cutters hereabouts."

It was the darkest time of the night when the special train came to a stop at a bridge spanning one of the deep Southern rivers. In the stream below dimly outlined in the gloom, lay the Fair Play, a small tramp steamer; her crew were up and awake. The new arrivals were hurried aboard, and within a half-hour she was feeling her way seawards.

With daylight, caution gave way to haste, and the rusty little tramp began to drive forward for all she was worth. She cleared the three-mile limit safely and then turned south. Not a craft was in sight; not a smudge or smoke discolored the skyline.

It had been a trying night for the filibusters, and when the low coastline was dropped astern they began to think of sleep. Breakfast of a sort was served on deck, after which those

Steam Pressing Preserves the Fabric of Woolens

Our method of pressing clothes by steam is such that the fabric of the woolens is preserved, the colors are brightened and the cloth is given a firmness that is found in new materials. It has been proved that proper pressing and cleaning by the right methods adds to the wearing qualities of the cloth. Money that is spent for pressing is well spent. It is economy and at the same time it adds to the appearance of the suit or dress. It is because our methods are so satisfactory that our business is growing by such leaps and bounds. Satisfaction is guaranteed.
